Timothy Duff is an outpatient physical therapist at All Pro Physical Therapy where he treats orthopedic patients and supervises two PT Assistants. As a former Marine, his experiences with injured friends and fellow veterans in the past led him to pursue the field. Tim witnessed the progress a patient can make with PT and returned to school to pursue career where he could help people return to their lives after an injury. While a student at WSU, he faced the challenges of being an older student with a family but says, “I was able to persevere with the support of my classmates and help of the faculty.” He has been able to take the skill set the program provided and expand it based on his interest in outpatient PT. He sees the program as providing “good training in beginning a career with general knowledge of all things PT.”
